DETAILED ACTIONClaim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Turcheck, Jr et al (5,103,304). Turcheck, Jr et al discloses the claimed invention.

Re claim 1, Turcheck, Jr et al discloses an apparatus for acquiring image information using an array of an image acquisition units (CCD 34), each having an optical device (pixel), comprising: a geometric array of image acquisition units (see col. 2 lines 3-5), each having an optical device (pixel) generating an electrical signal (see waveform "a" in figure 4) depending on image intensity of a subject; and an image signal output unit (36) for receiving the electrical signal from the array (34) and then generating a source electrical signal to process analog image.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 2, 3, 7-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Turcheck Jr, et al,

Turcheck Jr et al has been discussed above, except for the

- Re claim 2, the array of image acquisition units is changeable in accordance with a geometric shape of the subject.
- Re claim 3, the array of image acquisition units has a square, radial or circular shape, or combination thereof.
- Re claim 7, the apparatus for acquiring image information according to claim 1, further comprising: an image information processing unit for generating analog image information by processing the source electrical signal; and an image information display unit for displaying the analog image information generated through the image information processing unit.

- Re claim 8, the apparatus for acquiring image information according to claim 1, further comprising a light emitting unit having an optical device for supplementing deficient light quantity.
- Re claim 9, the apparatus for acquiring image information according to claim 1, further comprising an array of light emitting units, each having an optical device, which supplements deficient light quantity and is arranged in a geometric shape.
- Re claim 10, the apparatus for acquiring image information according to claim 1, wherein a program for calculating a value with respect to dimension of the subject by using geometric location and dimension information of the image acquisition unit is installed in the apparatus.

Re claims 2 and 10, a recitation of the intended use of the claimed invention must result in a structural difference between the claimed invention and the prior art in order to patentably distinguish the claimed invention from the prior art. If the prior art structure is capable of performing the intended use, then it meets the claim. Note further claim 10, the CPU in Turcheck Jr et al is capable for performing the calculation as claimed. See also col. 1 lines 30-37.

Re claims 3, 8-9, lacking any stated criticality it would have been an obvious design choice to change the shape of Turcheck Jr et al from linear to square, radial, circular or the combination thereof or to include the light emitting units.

Re claim 7, see figure 2 and col. 2 lines 60-65 for the display unit (48). Lacking any stated criticality it would have been an obvious design choice to have analog instead of digital

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 4-6 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Claims 11-19 are allowed.
